

Major-General (Ret.) Eitan Ben-Eliahu

Eitan was born and raised in Jerusalem. During his 38 years in the Israel Air Force (IAF), Maj. Gen. (Res.) Eitan Ben Eliahu was an active fighter pilot. In 1996, he was appointed Air Force Chief Commander, a post he held for four years.

After his retirement Eitan founded and managed in US the company STG which focused on defense technologies, his shares were sold successfully in 2006. Currently Mr. Ben Eliahu is a Chairman of "Aeronautics" Ltd, a leading developer and manufacturer of Unmanned Airborne Vehicle, a Chairman of 'Ariel Photonics" Ltd, director at Diamond Fund, financial hedge fund based in Geneva Switzerland and in Singapore. In Open University of Tel Aviv he is a speaker and hosts program for policy and national defense.

Mr. Ben-Eliahu is active as a lay leader in numerous social and communal organizations, including: Chairman of Academic Center of Law & Business a college in the city of Ramat-Gan Israel, Cochairman of the Jewish Diaspora Museum International Board of Governors, member of "Yad Ben-Zvi" institute for the study of Jewish communities, Member in executive committee of "College for all" and "Rubin Museum".

Mr. Ben Eliahu holds an undergraduate degree in Economics and Business Administration from Tel Aviv's Bar Ilan University and a graduate in Strategy and International Relations studies in Tel Aviv University. He is also a graduate of Harvard University's Advanced Management Program.